

Speed Up Time to Hire with Job Multi-posting Services

39% of companies said filtering a high volume of under-qualified candidates was their biggest hiring challenge.

Recruiting teams can significantly speed up the time to hire employees via adopting tools and services designed to attract the right candidate, faster. MHR partners with Broadbean to offer customers job multi-posting services. MHR products integrate with Broadbean to supply recruiters with an extensive network of job boards to post to.

Broadbean provide access to over 5,000 global job boards and roles can be posted to multiple channels, simultaneously at a click of a button. Along with targeting quality candidates, Broadbean also offers analytics and insights around which job boards are higher performing and information relating to the candidate application journey.

Empower recruiting teams to achieve better utilisation across the recruitment function, through a service which offers significant time savings. It reduces the admin burden of individual job posting and provides recruiters with more time to create better engaging job adverts.

The critical data delivered through Broadbean's reporting tools, can be used to drive an improved recruiting strategy. Better allocate budget, achieve higher ROI, and leverage scheduling functionality to better plan active requisitions.
