Gathering insights from your people data is crucial. Not only can it help you generate the reports you need for stakeholders, but it can also help to inform strategic business decisions and help the business to pivot quickly to build resilience.

39% of HR, finance and other professions have no access to their People Data. This is a huge loss of information which can be used to guide the business. Even in cases when People Data is available, in three out of five cases it is still disconnected from wider business data, which makes it difficult to analyse, and time consuming to distribute.
